

Hardin County Master Gardener Volunteer Program

County Coordinator – Mark Badertscher –(419) 674-2297
Volunteer Coordinator – Dave McPheron - (419) 675-2111

The Ohio State University Extension Master Gardener Volunteer Program provides intensive training in horticulture to interested Ohio residents who then volunteer their time assisting with educational programs and activities for Ohio residents through their local Ohio State University Extension county office. Volunteers are not required to have gardening skills or knowledge; but a passion for learning about gardening and sharing this knowledge with others is a must!

Working with county Extension personnel and a Volunteer Coordinator, Master Gardener Volunteers provide such educational services to their communities as: answering gardening questions from the public; conducting plant clinics; gardening activities with children, senior citizens, or disabled persons; beautifying the community; developing community or demonstration gardens; and other horticultural activities.

Mission

We are Ohio State University Extension trained volunteers empowered to educate others with timely research-based gardening information.

Our initiatives for 2014:

Integrated Pest Management
Invasive Species
Backyard and Local Foods
Environmental Horticulture

How did the Master Gardener Volunteer Program originate?

The Master Gardener program originated in Seattle, Washington in 1972. The Extension Agent in the King County office of the Washington State Extension Service began to train and utilize the expertise of volunteers in order to more effectively reach the gardening public with research-based educational information. It was a great concept that has now spread across the United States, Canada and to other countries. The Master Gardener program in Ohio has existed since the late 1970s and has grown steadily. Although its initial start and growth was in the more urban counties of our state, there are now more than 3000 active Master Gardener volunteers in more than 62 Ohio counties, urban, suburban and rural.

How do I know if I'd make a good Master Gardener Volunteer?

You could qualify to be an Ohio Master Gardener if:

- You want to learn more about plants and gardening.
- You are eager to participate in a practical and intensive training program.
- You enjoy sharing your knowledge with others.
- You have the time to attend training and serve your community as a volunteer educator.

When is Master Gardener Volunteer training conducted?

Most Master Gardener Volunteer training takes place in late winter to early spring, late January through March. However, some counties train in the summer or fall. Most training is conducted in the day-time, since most volunteer opportunities take place during the day. However, some counties do night-time training.

Recruitment of new volunteers usually begins 2 to 3 months before training begins. Contact your the local County Extension office for specific details.

Is there a fee for Master Gardener Volunteer training?

Yes, there is a fee for Master Gardener Volunteer training. The fee covers the cost of training materials and other expenses the county may incur to conduct training and to help support educational activities. Fees vary from county to county.

How can I find out more about my county's Master Gardener Volunteer program?

(<http://mastergardener.osu.edu/>)

For more information on your local Master Gardener Volunteer program, click on the County Programs link at the top of the page and then click on your county name. If your county has a volunteer program, you'll find the name of your county Master Gardener Volunteer program coordinator and contact information. The coordinator will be happy to answer any other questions you may have.

Is there more after the initial training?

Yes, volunteers can recertify by obtaining 10 advanced training credits each year as well as complete the number of volunteer hours required by the county (this varies from program to program). In addition, there is a $10.00 state support fee due each year; some counties also charge dues for membership.
